

delights her grandchildren.

Mr. Coleman said the wall is a work in progress.

The CEO said he's eager to add more donors to the wall, named for his deceased parents, Cora A. and Ray Coleman, especially since the clinic that opened in February 2004 is scrambling to replace a $150,000 state grant that just ran out.

Tapestry serves uninsured and low-income folks on a sliding scale. It's also a Medicare, Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program provider.

One of a handful of nonprofit clinics in Collin County, it is seeing an escalating demand for services.

To get your name on one of those balloons, call 1-888-540-7701 or visit www.tapestryhealthcare.org.

Do you know of someone doing something interesting? Was there a quirky event in your neighborhood? Or is there something new coming up in Collin County? Call Linda Stewart Ball at 469-330-5620 or e-mail lsball@dallasnews.com.

a mural with Mickey and Minnie Mouse-type characters in the center. A colorful array of balloons floats around them. Each balloon bears the name of a donor.

"I think it's pretty neat," said Vanessa Shackleford of McKinney, who was seated in the waiting room. The cheery image also

Tapestry Healthcare

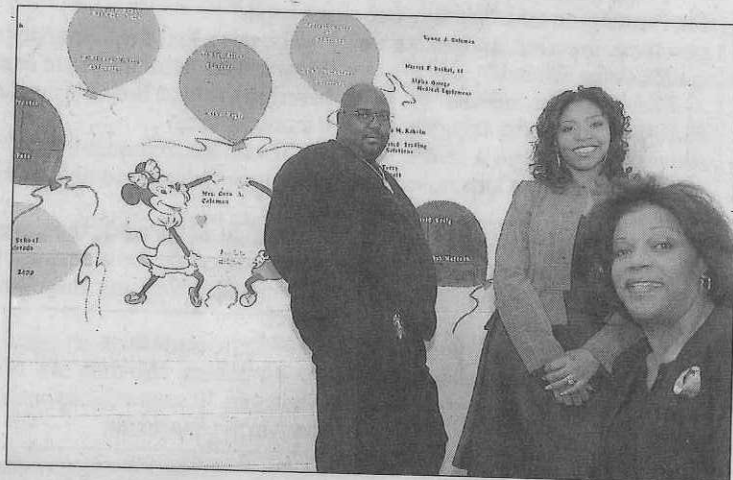

Looking for an artist to help spruce up the place, Ray A. Coleman went no farther than the lobby of the nonprofit healthcare center he oversees in McKinney.

There he found Burnice Breckenridge, a Plano artist who just happened to be accompanying her husband, a patient at Tapestry Healthcare Inc.

Mr. Coleman wanted an upbeat way to publicly praise the clinic's donors — those who have contributed at least $1,000 in cash or materials — and add some color to the center's walls.

Ms. Breckenridge and her talented daughter, Dominique, were glad to help.

The women recently designed

JUAN GARCIA/Staff Photographer

Tapestry Health Care founder Ray A. Coleman stands with artists Dominique (center) and Burnice Breckenridge.